Trial Delays In Ada County

DRUNK DRIVER CASES HOG SPOTLIGHT

The first six months were spent waiting for it. The next six months were spent dealing with it. It was said to be a "lawyers relief bill" because of the potential litigation. It brought predictions that the courts would grind to a halt from a glut of jury trials. Whatever else it turned out to be, the legislature's new anti-drunken driving law monopolized the attention of the judiciary and the public in 1983.

The fight against drunk driving has been called this decade's most widespread and sustained grass-roots movement. With estimates that 25,000 Americans are killed and 700,000 injured each year in alcohol-related highway accidents, that grass-roots movement collided with the Idaho legislature and the courts in 1983.

In January, 1983, legislators began struggling to find a legislative solution to the spiraling increase (79% since 1975) in drunk driving cases. Caught between a public clamor for mandatory jail sentences and warnings from criminal justice officials of shortages of resources, the legislature devised a worthy compromise: leaving judges free to exercise their discretion in sentencing of first time offenders, while mandating a ten-day jail sentence for second time offenders. Courts would, however, have to suspend driver licenses for first time offenders for up to six months. Bowing to alcohol treatment advocates, legislators added a provision to the new law requiring an alcohol evaluation before sentencing.

Concurrent with the progress of the legislation, the Idaho Supreme Court adopted procedural rules to describe the mechanics of how the new legislation would be carried out. Form affidavits and a new uniform citation were designed and promulgated. And to ease the transition to the state's first major change in its DUI laws in more than a decade, the Supreme Court's administrative staff traveled throughout the state in April and May to hold training seminars on the law for judges, court clerks, prosecutors, and law enforcement officers.

Heralded by a barrage of media warnings of possible jail sentences and a statewide anti-drunk driving campaign, the new DUI law went into effect on July 1, 1983. Whether as a result of the advance publicity or the deterrent effect of possible jail sentences and loss of driver licenses, misdemeanor DUI case filings dropped sharply for the first time in several years--22.4% fewer defendants were charged with driving while under the influence in July of 1983, as compared with the first six months average.

Misdemeanor DUI complaints filed in the courts for the second six months of 1983 averaged 15% fewer complaints than the first six months of the year, before the new law went into effect. (See Chart, page 4.) The second six months average of 923 new filings per month was the lowest sustained average since 1981.

CRACKDOWN ON TRIAL DELAY

The Chief Justice's no-nonsense program to reduce court delay has judges hopping to dispose of older cases.

As predicted, defense attorneys were active in challenging the new law. Most attacks centered on the law's "per se" determination of guilt of defendants found with 0.10 blood alcohol content, as well as on automatic driver license seizures and suspensions for defendants who refuse to take a blood alcohol content. Trial courts upheld the "per se" law but on the question of license seizures and suspensions, judges initially split sharply, with some magistrates ruling the law invalid, while others up-held the provisions. By the end of the year, district judge rulings in appeals had stabilized the situation: the law was valid, and police officers again began seizing licenses of drivers who refused to take blood alcohol exams.

In Ada County, guilty pleas on first appearances dropped from 80% to 20% in a matter of weeks after the new law went into effect and requests for jury trials stretched trial waiting times from 3 to 7 months. Responding to the delays, the Supreme Court assigned eight magistrate judges from other judicial districts to hear jury trials in Ada County, and by the end of the year, defendants again were being tried within three to four months of their arraignment.

The new law was having other effects as well: in some parts of the state, prosecuting attorneys entered into more plea bargains, allowing

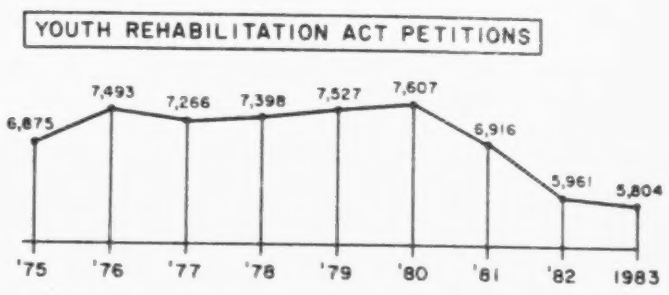
IDAHO BUCKS NATIONAL TRENDS AS JUVENILE DELINQUENCY COMPLAINTS CONTINUE TO DROP

Despite national concern about rising juvenile crime, the number of juvenile delinquency complaints being filed with the Idaho courts has been declining for the last several years. Delinquency complaints (technically called "Youth Rehabilitation Act petitions") have remained at consistent levels for almost a decade.

The 1983 total of 5,804 new petitions is almost 3% less than the 5,961 petitions filed in 1982. Since 1980, there has been a 24% decline in the number of delinquency complaints filed in the state.

This steady decline in new juvenile cases filed with the courts, when compared with Idaho's population growth over the same period and generally increasing juvenile crime rates of other states, probably evidences the successful efforts of courts and social agencies to divert less serious juvenile charges from the courts. With the leveling off in the number of youths placed in institutional settings reported by the state Department of Health and Welfare, and with increased involvement of private citizens and agencies in prevention and treatment programs for juveniles, juvenile court caseloads are seen as favorable trends.



An additional factor in the drop of delinquency complaints may be the state's "get tough" attitude toward juvenile crime. In recent years the Idaho legislature has passed laws lowering the age at which a juvenile may be prosecuted as an adult for serious and violent offenses, putting a higher premium on youthful criminality.

ON THE RECORD

"There is a growing dissatisfaction with delays in the courts on the part of citizens and private businesses which have almost written off the courts as a timely remedy for disputes. The viability of the courts as an institution to resolve disputes and remedy injuries depends upon public acceptance of the courts, and unnecessary delays are eroding public confidence."

--Chief Justice Charles R. Donaldson, speaking to administrative judges and trial court administrators on the problems of court delay.

"My mission is to hear cases, not continuances."

--Visiting Judge Gregory M. Culet, upon receiving yet another request to postpone a DUI jury trial in Ada County.

"The time has come for a special study commission to be established by the legislature, including key legislators, the Governor's staff, selected trial and appellate judges, and representatives of our correctional system, to review Idaho's criminal sentencing statutes. The commission should examine the possibility of establishing formal, detailed sentencing guidelines to replace the informal and general guidelines which now exist."

--Court of Appeals Judge Donald L. Burnett, Jr., in a speech to the Idaho Press Club.

APPELLATE FILINGS STAY AT RECORD LEVELS

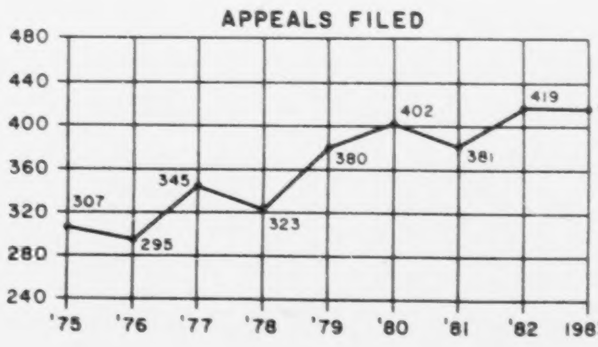
MOST APPEALS DISPOSED EVER

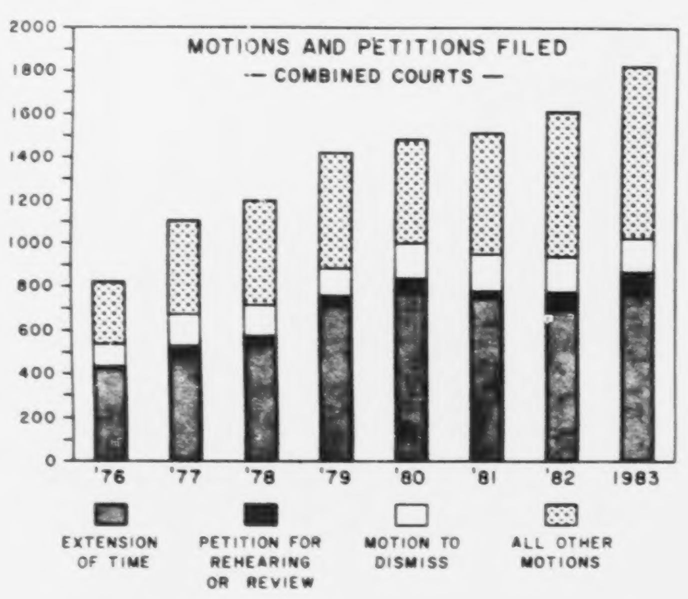
Perhaps no where else has the litigious nature of American society been more apparent than in the spiraling number of appeals. Increasing numbers of litigants are refusing to accept an initial court decision as final, and a "take it all the way to the top" attitude is flooding state and federal appellate courts throughout the country.

Idaho has not been an exception to national trends, and the business recession which depressed trial court case filings for the last two years seems to have had no apparent impact on appellate litigation. Appellate filings in 1983 were at their second-highest point in history, with the 418 appeals just one less than 1982's record 419 appeals.



Despite the high level of filings in 1983, court officials still are hesitating to predict whether appeals might level off or even decline in the near future. The statutory increase in the interest rate on judgments and the increased ability of the appellate courts to hear cases since the creation of the court of appeals yet may reduce filings or lead to a higher rate of settlements before oral argument.

Petitions and motions increased in 1983, and continued to be a considerable strain on Idaho's system. During 1983, 1827 new petitions and motions were filed with the Courts. The courts dealt finally with 1836. The number of petitions and motions rose during 1983 14% from the 1982 record total of 1610. Also filed with the court during the year were 33 original proceedings and 2 attorney discipline matters. Some motions like the petition for writ of mandate involving state legislator's salaries, required substantial research and effort.



Appellate dispositions reached an all time high during 1983. The Supreme Court and Court of Appeals disposed of 436 appeals in 1983, a 23% increase from the record dispositions in 1982.

Two-Year Respite Ends

CASELOADS RISE IN TRIAL COURTS

The end of the economic recession in Idaho has marked the return of a familiar fixture to the courts--an increase in caseload. After a two-year pause in the steady caseload increases of the 1970's, trial court caseloads have again begun to rise, perhaps signaling the dominant trend of the 1980's.

After an almost 8% decline in new case filings for the period January 1, 1981 through December 31, 1982, new cases coming into the courts started to climb again in 1983, with the total filings in all courts of 301,359 a 1.6% increase over the 1982 total of 296,733 filings.

Changing Growth Patterns

During the decade of the 1970's, new cases had been filed in the Idaho courts at an almost uniform 4-5% annual increase. State officials became accustomed to predictable growth and responded accordingly, by building new courtrooms and adding more judges to accommodate heavier workloads.

The growth in trial court business had a number of contributing factors during the 1970's, including the sharp growth of Idaho's population and the increased number of attorneys admitted to practice. Between 1970 and 1980, the state's population grew by 32% from 713,015 to 943,935, and the number of attorneys almost tripled, from about 600 to 1,540. An economic upswing may signal a return to the increasing caseload trends of the 1970's in the latter half of the 1980 decade.

Winners and Losers

An increase in traffic cases accounted for one-third of the increase in trial court filings. After dropping sharply in 1982, new traffic cases increased by 0.8% to 199,894, in 1983, up from 198,354 in 1982.

Small claims department filings took the biggest loss, dropping 12.7% to 14,360 in 1983, down from the 1982 record high of 16,444. Court watchers had speculated that the 1982 record number of small claims filings may have been spurred by recession-pressed plaintiffs choosing to file suit against asset-poor defendants in the small claims departments, waiving balances of claims above $2000, rather than paying attorney fees to gain a judgment in the magistrate division which might be uncollectable.

Overall, magistrate division case filings increased by 1.7%, from 287,240 in 1982 to 292,026 in 1983. District court filings dropped slightly in 1983 to 9,333 as compared with 9,493 new cases in 1982.

Dispositions Up

Despite reports from trial judges that individual cases have become more complex and that the time required to dispose of individual cases has expanded, the trial courts increased their overall dispositions in 1983.

District judges and judges of the magistrate division disposed of 3.4% more cases in 1983 than in 1982, disposing of 300,579 cases during the past calendar year, as compared with 290,740 cases in 1982. The number of cases pending in the trial courts nonetheless rose by 1.1% in 1983 from 49,579 on December 31, 1982 to 50,119 on December 31, 1983.

The average number of new cases filed for each district judge in the state in 1983 was 283 cases, while the average for judges of the magistrate division was 4172 new cases. This compares with new case filings in the prior year of 306 cases per district judge and 4046 new cases per magistrate judge. The district judges disposed of an average of 292 cases per judge during the year, while the judges of the magistrate division averaged 4156 dispositions per judge.

Of the civil cases which received a final judgment in the trial courts in 1983, 7847 or 16.2% were disposed of with a court or jury trial. On the criminal side, 97.5% of these cases were disposed of through pleas or dismissals, while 6050 or 2.5% received a court or jury trial.

Magistrate Appeals

Appeals from the magistrate division to the district court continued to rise in 1983, adding to district court caseloads. In 1983, district courts received 597 appeals from magistrate decisions, up 18.9% over the 502 appeals filed in 1982. District judges disposed of 563 magistrate division appeals in 1983, leaving 403 appeals pending at the end of the year.

CASE FILINGS AND DISPOSITIONS IN TRIAL COURTS

During 1983, the Supreme Court disposed of 185 appeals by majority opinions, while the Court of Appeals disposed of 100 by majority opinions. This was a substantial productivity increase for the second straight year.

MAJORITY OPINIONS FINALLY DISPOSING OF APPEALS

Calendar Year	Supreme Court Opinions	Court of Appeals Opinions	Total Opinions
1983	185	100	285
1982	137	88	225
1981	141		141
1980	198		198
1979	188		188
1978	157		157
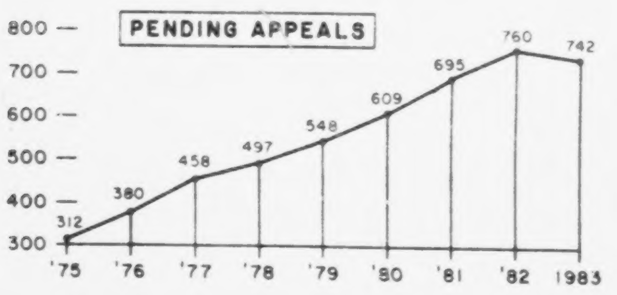
1976	136		136

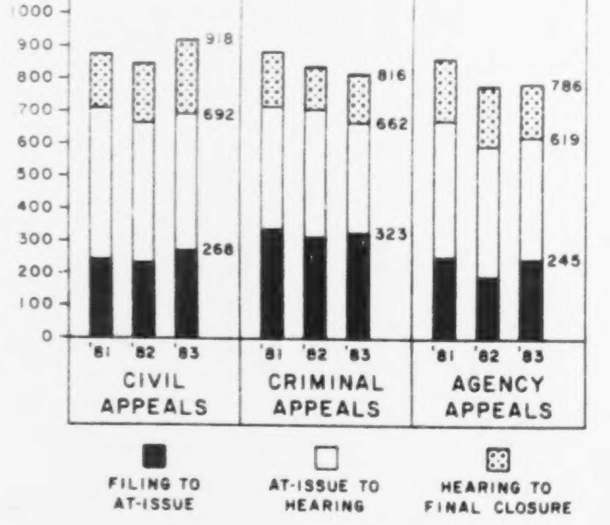
The total number of appeals pending has risen steadily and sharply since 1974. But in 1983, for the first time in the decade, the number of pending appeals was less at the end of the year than at the beginning. At year's end there were 742 appeals which had been filed and were still awaiting final disposition, compared to the 760 appeals which had been pending at the beginning of 1983.



Raw numbers of pending appeals do not tell the whole story: the amount of time people must wait to have their appeal decided is of more importance to individual litigants, and in this statistic there has been considerable improvement, largely as a result of the creation of the Court of Appeals.

During 1983 it took an average of 871 days from the time an appeal was filed with the Supreme Court until either the Supreme Court or Court of Appeals finally concluded its work on the case. While higher than 1982's average, the delay was still less than 1981, the year before the creation of the court of appeals. This average was   days less than the average in 1982, and a full   months less than would have been the delay without the Court of Appeals.

AVERAGE NUMBER OF DAYS FOR APPEALS TO BE DECIDED



Both courts helped cut down the total amount of time it takes from when a case is fully briefed and ready to be argued until oral argument is held. That delay averaged about 13 months, and the Supreme Court was completely current in Twin Falls and Pocatello.

TRAFFIC DECRIMINALIZATION WORKING

After two years of preparation and amendments, Idaho's Traffic Infractions Act went into effect on July 1, 1983, and the big news is there haven't been any hitches.

Conceived by the state's Prosecuting Attorney Association but amended substantially by the judiciary, the new law removes traffic offenses from the category of crimes. Under the former law, errant drivers technically could be fined up to $300 and jailed for six months for traffic violations, but under the new law violators can't be jailed and the maximum penalty that can be assessed is $100.

The exact amount of traffic penalties is set by Supreme Court order, and judges are no longer free to reduce the amount of penalties to be assessed. This change has resulted in a reduction in the number of defendants who appear before judges to plead their cases--they can still plead not guilty and get a trial, but an elaborate explanation and sorrowful demeanor no longer will earn the violator a reduced fine. Court officials estimate that the number of drivers appearing personally before judges dropped by about 38% after the new law went into effect on July 1.

Drivers no longer have to make two court appearances to contest a traffic ticket. They can register a "not guilty" plea and obtain a trial date from the court clerk's office. And drivers now can mail in a check for the amount of the penalty.

Another reform involves enforcement of nonpayment of traffic penalties: previously, defendants could be jailed for nonpayment of traffic fines, and many were. The new law prohibits arrest and jailing of drivers. Nonpayment of penalties results in a license suspension. As reported by law enforcement officials around the state, this change has resulted in a sharp drop in the number of persons spending time in local jail facilities for traffic-related problems. Also, police officers no longer can arrest a driver who refuses to sign a traffic citation, eliminating shouting matches and altercations between law enforcement officers and drivers.

Decriminalization of traffic offenses has worked so well in Idaho to date that lawmakers are considering expanding the category of infractions to include other non-traffic misdemeanors. With its emphasis on traffic regulation rather than criminal enforcement, the Idaho Traffic Infractions Act has given the state a new approach to policing its streets and highways.

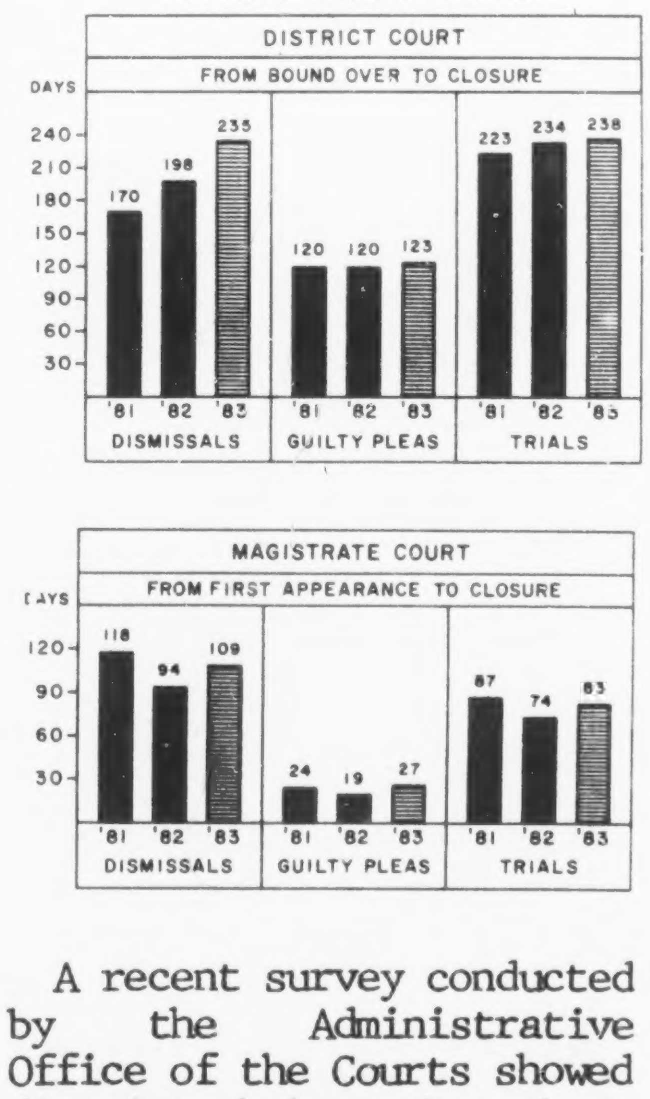
HOW LONG JUSTICE IS TAKING

In many cases, the amount of time it takes to get a decision is almost as important as the decision itself. How can one measure how long a defendant should wait in a jail cell before his case is heard, or what is a reasonable wait for a parent in a child custody action? While Idaho has never experienced the five-year trial delays of some of the urban states, the judiciary nevertheless is concerned about delay and has begun measuring its performance.

Even after a case has been filed in court, there are many reasons for delay which are beyond the courts' control. Problems in scheduling witnesses, late filing of attorney briefs, extensions of time to obtain appointed counsel, and extra time needed for presentence reports can delay final disposition of a case.

For years, civil case operating times have been left up to the individual litigants, although recently the courts have become more active in moving the civil calendar. Criminal cases always have received a priority in court scheduling. With the help of statutory time limits for certain procedures, criminal case processing times are much less than civil cases.

CRIMINAL CASE PROCESSING



A recent survey conducted by the Administrative Office of the Courts showed district judges throughout the state calendaring civil trials from 2 to 12 months in advance with waiting time for criminal trial dates varying from 1 to 5 months. The relationship between pending cases and the time taken to dispose

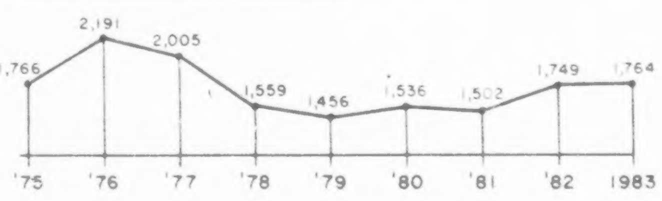
WHERE IS THE DRUG PROBLEM?

Law enforcement agencies have continued to voice concern over an alleged increase in the flow of illegal drugs into Idaho. Court case filings, however, failed to substantiate any significant increased prosecution for illegal drugs in recent years.

DRUG ABUSE COMPLAINTS



Drug-related complaints filed in the state courts in 1983 were almost identical with the 1982 level. There were 1764 new drug abuse complaints filed in 1983, compared with the 1982 total of 1749 complaints. This level continues a generally lower trend in drug-related complaints in recent years, compared with complaint levels in the early and mid-1970's.

Perhaps reflecting diversion efforts, petitions against juveniles for drug-abuse charges dwindled to only 16 statewide, down from 44 petitions in 1982. Petitions against juveniles represented less than 1% of the total drug abuse case filings in Idaho.

Magistrate judges disposed of 1705 adult drug complaints and 21 juvenile drug complaints in 1983, while district judges disposed of a total of 313 felony drug cases.

BAKES HEADS NATIONAL JUDGES GROUP

Idaho Supreme Court Justice Robert E. Bakes has been elected 1983-84 Chairman of the Appellate Judges Conference of the American Bar Association's Judicial Administration Division. The group represents state and federal appellate judges from throughout the country, and works to educate and improve the appellate judiciary.

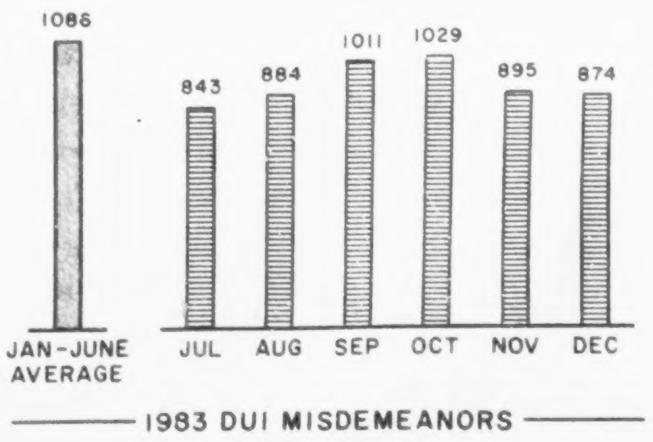
defendants to plead guilty to a lesser charge to avoid going to trial. In Ada County, the number of defendants pleading guilty to reduced or amended charges increased from 14% in January, to 42% in December, while the percentage of cases going to trial jumpred from 2% in January to 31% in December.

More defendants went to jail under the new law. Of all the defendants initially charged with DUI, 44% went to jail in December, 1983, as compared with 29% in January. When just those defendants who actually appeared before the judge for sentencing are considered, 64% went to jail in December, as compared with 41% in January. In one county --Bonneville County--the percentage of defendants who appear before a judge and are sentenced to incarceration for DUI offenses remained consistent between the beginning and the end of 1983--100%!

With only six months experience, court officials were reluctant to predict long term trends, but by the end of 1983, the new DUI law coupled with educational efforts and changing societal attitudes toward drinking and driving appears to have contributed toward at least an interim decline in the number of drunken driving charges being brought to the courts.



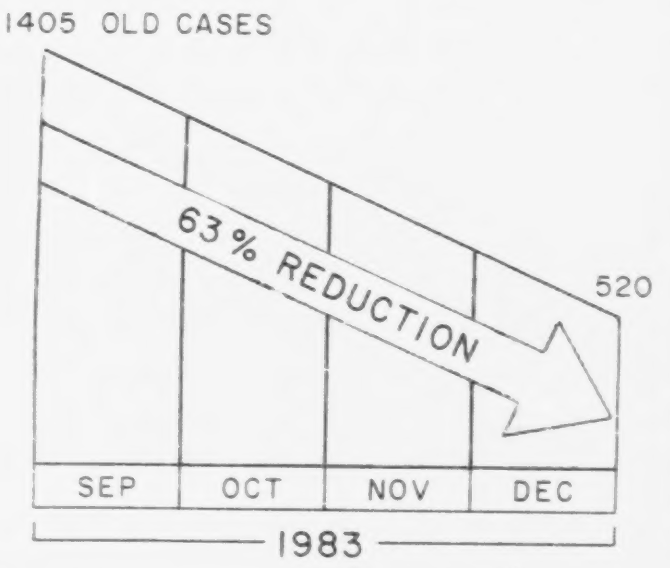
1983 DUI MISDEMEANORS CASE FILINGS

DELAY REDUCTION EFFORT SHOWS RESULTS

In the Fall of 1983, Chief Justice Charles R. Donaldson initiated a delay reduction program in the trial courts. In a September 6 letter to all trial judges, Donaldson called upon court officials to develop a plan of action to reduce the number of older cases pending in the trial courts. He cited court records which showed that at the time there were 1405 cases which had been pending for four years or longer without coming to trial. Stating that the Supreme Court was "cognizant of the heavy workload of our trial bench and that you are diligently performing your duties under very trying circumstances," the Chief Justice urged the best efforts of all to eliminate the backlog. Donaldson set a goal of disposing of at least 50% of the 1405 pending cases within six months.

By the end of the calendar year, the Chief Justice's program had made its mark. Administrative district judges and trial court administrators pitched in throughout the state to review all older pending cases and expedite their handling. Monthly dismissal calendars were established in some counties and special computerized reports were prepared identifying inactive cases. By the end of the calendar year, less than four months later, the number of four-year old active pending cases statewide had fallen to 520 cases--a 63% reduction.

As the year ended, Chief Justice Donaldson commended trial judges for their efforts in reducing court delay, and urged judges to continue close monitoring of their calendars to eliminate backlogs.



PUBLIC TERMINAL EXPERIMENT

Service to the legal community took on a decidedly technological tone in November of 1983, as the Idaho Supreme Court inaugurated the state's first automated public research terminal. Begun as an experiment, with pooled funds from the Supreme Court, Attorney General, Public Utilities Commission and State Industrial Commission, the terminal will stay in operation through 1984 through funds appropriated by the Idaho Legislature.

While costs have been reduced in recent years, computerized legal research systems generally are still too expensive for smaller law firms to purchase on an individual basis. As a consequence, there is a growing gap between the research capabilities of larger law firms who can utilize a dedicated automated system, and smaller firms and sole practitioners who do not have this resource available. The Supreme Court's public terminal balances the scales, making computerized legal research a reality for smaller firms.

Utilizing a LEXIS terminal installed in the State Law Library, the key to the Supreme Court's program is furnishing a full-time terminal operator to assist lawyers and members of the public in obtaining computerized research.

Attorneys and others using the court terminal must sign up for the program and pay an advance deposit to cover costs of machine search time. Users are provided with instructional material, but the terminal operator assists in framing research requests.

The Supreme Court's public automated legal research terminal is still an experiment. Whether enough attorneys and others will sign up and use the computerized service to justify the costs of operation is unknown. But at least for the moment, attorneys in even the smallest law firms and the most remote locations in Idaho are only a telephone call away from the nation's most advanced data banks of research information.

TRIAL COURT FINANCING GUIDELINES BRING APPLAUSE

CONTROVERSY DEFUSED

In nine months, county government officials and trial judges went from vocal opponents to cooperative partners, thanks to a study of trial court financing initiated by the Idaho Supreme Court. While most officials grant that not all problems have been solved, it now appears less likely that trial court budget disputes will rupture into open warfare.

For two years running, the Idaho Association of Counties had proposed legislation to take administration of the District Court Fund away from trial judges. Court officials strongly opposed this legislation, amid a growing controversy over whether county or state judicial officials should have the management control over funds which support trial court operations in each of the 44 Idaho counties.

Debate before legislative committees became acerbic, and in the House Judiciary, Rules and Administration Committee and the House State Affairs Committee, legislators witnessed county commissioners, clerks, and trial judges presenting arguments ranging from accusations that judges were usurping county authority to suggestions that any problems were imagined only.

After three separate hearings, legislators declined to adopt legislation affecting the district court fund. Individual legislators, however, were asking for help: they needed a way to sort out the conflicting arguments they had heard and to determine whether a legislative solution was really necessary.

Concerned over the public controversy and deteriorating relations between court and county officials in some counties, the Idaho Supreme Court decided to offer a forum to help resolve differences. On May 19, 1983, Chief Justice Charles R. Donaldson appointed a statewide committee of county and court officials to study trial court financing issues and make recommendations.

Meeting throughout 1983, the committee, chaired by Court of Appeals Chief Judge Jesse R. Walters, produced a 50-page report which recommended guidelines for all phases of the district court budgeting process, approval of court expenditures, and supervision of court personnel. Reaction to the committee's recommendations was immediate and positive: the Supreme Court accepted the recommendations of the committee and urged trial judges throughout the state to follow the proposed guidelines. By the end of the year, the committee recommendations seem to have been accepted throughout the state and conflicts and disagreements had been sharply reduced. In place of the open warfare that had been threatened, the end of 1983 saw a firm foundation for a strong financial partnership between county officials and the state judiciary.

WHAT DOES IT COST TO OPERATE THE TRIAL COURTS

In fiscal year 1984, the state of Idaho will spend approximately $6.0 million in general funds (mostly sales and income taxes) for the district courts and magistrates divisions. County and city government units spend about $12.8 million for the trial courts, more than twice the amount spent by the state.

The total cost of the trial courts, including contributions by state, counties and cities amounts to about $18.8 million annually.

The trial courts will produce approximately $11.2 million in revenues in Fiscal year 1984, returning approximately 60 percent of the costs to all units of government in the form of revenues derived from filing fees, court costs, fines and forfeitures.

When only local government expenditures are examined, cities and counties spend approximately $12.8 million each year to operate the trial courts which return over $7 million to local units of government each year. Thus, local units of governments receive back over one-half of their expenditures on behalf of the counties.

Another way of looking at it: government units in Idaho are able to run an $18.8 million trial court system, at taxpayer cost of about $7.6 million. The users of the court--the civil litigants and the criminal defendants--pay about 60% of the cost of court operations.

HOW THE COURTS ARE FUNDED

Idaho's trial courts are financed by a combination of state, county and municipal funds. State general account monies finance the salaries and travel expenses of all trial judges, trial court administrators, and court reporters. The state also finances judicial training programs for trial judges and support personnel.

Counties and a few municipalities contribute to operational costs of the trial courts. Counties, and in two cases cities, provide court physical facilities: courtrooms, judges' offices, judicial chambers and the like. Counties and a handful of cities provide additional expenditures for court personnel, supplies, equipment and law libraries.

COURT OF APPEALS MAKES IMPACT

Since it began operation on January 1, 1982, the Court of Appeals has had a significant impact on the backlog of pending appeals in Idaho's appellate system. Because of record filings of new appeals in 1982 and 1983, however, the primary impact of the Court of Appeals has been to keep the appellate backlog from increasing, rather than to make any substantial inroads in reducing the backlog of pending appeals. Nonetheless, the impact of the Court of Appeals has been substantial, and has prevented the state from a disastrous backlog situation which would have been one of the worst in the nation.

As shown below, the assistance of the Court of Appeals in its first year enabled the judiciary to limit the increase of pending appeals to 9.4% in 1982, the second-lowest percentage increase in the last seven years. This limit was accomplished in the face of the second highest number of appeals filed--418--in Idaho's history.

PENDING APPEALS

	Appeals Pending	Appeals Filed	Appeals Disposed	Appeals Pending	Percentage Increase (Decrease) in Pending Appeals
Prior years average					+14%
1982	695	419	354	760	+9%
Without Court of Appeals:			253	861	+24%
1883 actual	760	418	436	742	-2.4%
Net increase to date:					+6.7%
Without Court of Appeals:			325	954	+37%

As also shown, the net increase in the number of pending appeals since the beginning of operation of the Court of Appeals has been 6.7%, which is a substantial improvement over the 37% increase which would have occurred in pending appeals had not the legislature created the Court of Appeals. Additionally, the decrease in pending appeals of 2.4% in 1983 was the first net reduction in pending appeals in the last decade.

CHIEF JUSTICE TO GIVE MESSAGE

In January of 1983, Chief Justice Charles R. Donaldson was the first Chief Justice in state history to present a State of the Judiciary Message to the Idaho Legislature. He has been invited back in 1984 in what now looks like will be an annual visit.

Prior to 1983, Chief Justices made a brief presentation before the Joint Appropriations Committee, and on rare occasions appeared before legislative committees, but there was no single opportunity to address the entire legislature. In January of 1983, following Donaldson's election by the Court to a four-year term, President Pro Tem James Risch and Speaker of the House T. W. Stivers invited the Chief Justice to make a presentation to both houses of the legislature. The Chief Justice outlined for legislators the responsibilities and workloads of the courts, new programs and developments in the judiciary, and general legislative concerns. Legislators liked it, and in 1984 the Chief Justice has been invited back to do it all again, in what promises to become the third branch's equivalent to the Governor's State of the State Message.

DEBATE OVER LAWYER MAGISTRATES

When the magistrate divisions began operation in 1971, two-thirds of the magistrate judges were non-lawyers, and it was thought that a lay judge would be a permanent fixture in the Idaho judiciary. Today, only twelve non-lawyer magistrates are left, and there are signs that the days of the non-lawyer judge may be numbered.

Idaho has always had a strong tradition of citizen participation in the courts. Early probate, justice and police courts were staffed primarily by non-lawyers, and many of those experienced non-lawyer judges stayed on the bench when the magistrate division was created in 1971. In addition to the predominant number of non-lawyer judges who were part of the judiciary in the early 1970's, the district magistrate commissions, which select magistrates, are made up primarily of non-lawyers.

In recent years, while some legislators publicly criticized the judiciary for having too many lawyer judges (one legislator even undertook his own survey to show that non-lawyer judges are better than lawyer judges), the non-lawyer-dominated magistrate commissions quietly have been replacing retiring non-lawyer judges with attorney judges. These activities reached a peak in 1983, when three district magistrate commissions asked to replace non-lawyers with lawyer judges, and insisted upon keeping positions vacant until the legislature approved the additional money for the changes. Commissions argued forcefully that times have changed and that today's complex legal issues demand formal training and skills. Also underlying commission concerns is a belief that state citizens have a right to an equal level of judicial skills, regardless of whether they live far from state's main population centers.

Part of the debate centers on state laws that require a resident magistrate judge in each county in the state, regardless of population or caseload. In past years, legislators have been reluctant to appropriate funds to hire a lawyer judge in rural counties. But magistrate commission members remained determined to obtain lawyer judges. Regardless of what the legislature decides in 1984, the debate over whether all judges should be lawyers is bound to be around as long as there is an Idaho judiciary.

HOW LONG JUSTICE . . .

While the averages never can tell the story of delay in an individual case, they do help describe the overall picture of court operations. Fortunately, the Idaho Legislature has recognized the importance--and the real costs--of court delay, and consistently has provided the additional trial court judges who have been needed in recent years to meet the rising caseloads caused by the state's growth and development.

of these cases must be watched carefully, to insure that judicial resources are maintained at needed levels in future years.

LEXIS. THE EVIDENCE IS OVERWHELMING.

When it comes to computer-assisted legal research, there's no contest. LEXIS® is the leader. Over 150,000 legal professionals now use LEXIS—40,000 times a day. Read why.

LEXIS is the largest. It's the most comprehensive, on-line, full-text database of law and legal information in the world. And continuously updated.

LEXIS is the fastest. 90 percent of all searches are completed on average in 15-20 seconds.

LEXIS is the most available. We're open 23 hours a day—15 hours on weekends.

LEXIS is the most reliable. It's the only legal search system with its own telecommunications network—MeadNet®.

LEXIS is cost-efficient. The speed and full-text retrieval of LEXIS, plus off-peak discounts, plus off-line printing, make LEXIS more economical to use than any other service.

LEXIS gives you more law—not less law. Only LEXIS gives you slip opinions and Shepard's® and access to unpublished opinions and Auto-Cite®.

LEXIS gives you NEXIS®—the largest on-line, full-text database of news and information in the world. Millions of stories, articles and reports that don't turn up in law libraries—all instantly accessible to you.

LEXIS service sweeps the field. We have offices in 20 states, the District of Columbia—and 31 cities. Plus continuous, personal follow-up and on-going instruction.

LEXIS usage up nearly 20% in one year. And the number of new LEXIS accounts rose significantly in 1983. Every day more judges, lawyers, corporations, federal agencies, state and local governments, law firms, law schools in 50 states and foreign entities use LEXIS more than all other services.

INTRODUCTION

The Idaho courts have long appreciated the importance of statistical data for measuring past and present caseload factors, so that an accurate picture of the current situation, historical trends, and future projections can be obtained. Without such statistics, a court manager operates in the blind; and to the extent that such statistics are inaccurate or untimely, such a manager's vision is impaired.

In 1973, Idaho's was one of the first state judiciaries to implement a computerized system to collect detailed information on every case, of whatever type, filed in all of its trial courts. The system, called "CLASS" (Caseload Analysis Support System), has been in use continually since 1973, with occasional refinements. Today it stands as one of the best systems of its kind in the nation.

Data are provided by each trial court in the form of manual daily reports. These undergo scrupulous manual and computerized editing, after which the data are input to the CLASS system on the Supreme Court's computer. From data thus processed, management reports are prepared monthly for the Administrative Office of the Courts, District Administrative Judges, and Trial Court Administrators. The reports are normally in the hands of the recipients within two weeks from the close of each month. The system also produces statistical information used in the annual reports to the Governor and the State Legislature. Information generated by the CLASS system has become an integral part of the planning, budgeting and daily operational processes of the Idaho courts.

This Appendix to the Idaho Courts Annual Report for 1983 consists primarily of a year-end report generated by the CLASS system, with the exception of the appellate caseload information found on pages 1 thru 3. These were derived from reports generated by another automated system called "ATS" (Appeal Tracking System), which is also resident on the Supreme Court's computer and which was also developed entirely in-house.

The success of the CLASS system is due in large measure to the cooperation of the trial court judges and their deputy court clerks throughout Idaho. They are its only source of input; and the dedication with which they carry out their CLASS reporting activities is critical to the system's reliability.

The Administrative Office of the Courts is pleased to take this opportunity to thank those judges and clerks for their cooperation and hard work.

*: These figures are reflected in the "Added/Transfr" columns of the individual appellate courts' caseload reports found on the two following pages.

NOTE: Since the advent of the new Court of Appeals in 1982, newly-filed appeals are classified as "unassigned" until they reach the At Issue stage. At this point, each appeal is either retained by the Supreme Court or assigned to the Court of Appeals. Until they are thus distributed they are considered part of the overall appellate caseload, but are not counted as part of the caseload of either court.

The following chart combines and summarizes, by major case type groups, the caseload activities of all three elements: Unassigned cases, Supreme Court cases, and Court of Appeals cases.
